- Visit Qutb Minar (http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Qutb\_Minar), a UNESCO World Heritage site constructed between AD 1192 and AD 1368. It is the region's finest example of Indo-Islamic architecture and a must-see Delhi historical site.
- Visit Gobind Sadan (www.GobindSadan.org), a unique contemplative interfaith community. Our host is Mary Fisher, the author of Living Religions, by far the best-selling college textbook on the world's religions in the United States today. Our time at Gobind Sadan will include a tour of the premises, which feature dedicated sacred spaces for each of the world's major faith traditions, and a conversation with Ms. Fisher about India's status as host to a wonderful patchwork of religions. (We'll take our lunch at Gobind Sadan.)
- Return to the Hotel to Refresh
- Sanskriti Kendra: Evening Cultural Program ... The Sanskriti Kendra (www.SanskritiFoundation.org) spans 7 acres. It is devoted to art, nature, and culture. It's a lovely, peaceful place, and we're here for music, dance, food, and history. We sit on straw mats in a half-circle facing a circular, grassy stage. As soon as we sit, servers come by with delicious Indian appetizers: cream of tomato soup, kalmi vada (fried lentil fingers), and dhokla (steamed lentil cakes with mint chutney). As we nibble, musicians and dancers enter. Our troupe will be from India's Rajasthan state, and the clothing, music, and dance will be a lovely blend evoking indigenous Indian, Roma, and Native American traditions.
- Dinner at Sanskriti Kendra ... Following the music and dance performance, dinner will be taken here at Sanskriti Kendra. The spread of dishes represents the four regions of India: north, east, west, and south. An option after dinner is to take a tour of the premises, which includes the Museum of Every Act - a collection of more than 2000 everyday objects made with intricate beauty.
- Overnight at the Country Inn Delhi Saket

Rahul Sharma, Ele-fantastic's visionary owner, put this initiative in place 9 years ago for the express purpose of mitigating misconceptions about the treatment of Indian elephants and to show visitors that his family's multi-generational livelihood is fully consistent with promoting the well-being of the Indian elephant.

Rahul promotes communication with the elephants, and he has rescued many of his elephants from mistreatment in circuses throughout India. Our formal program with the elephants, which includes a delicious vegetarian lunch, lasts from 1:00 PM until 5:00 PM.

Immediately following the afternoon program – from 5:00 PM until 7:00 PM – we'll remain aboard our 'new friends' for a jungle safari, during which we may observe peacocks, jackals – and, if we're lucky – endangered predators such as tigers and leopards.

Our session is planned so that we derive benefit from this age-old method of keeping bodies healthy. Our class is planned carefully and scientifically, and emphasis is given to doing 'pranayams' and 'assans' in slow motion. Each of us will be personally attended, so that all of the assans are accomplished in proper alignment – stress-free. Our class will promote health and flexibility.

Following the class proper, we'll have a few moments to sit with our instructors to ask questions about Indian yoga – its history and evolution; the various forms it has assumed over the centuries; its embrace worldwide, including in the West; its role in promoting health and spiritual well-being; and its future!
